Dr. Don Azevedo

Program Facilitator

Dr. Don Azevedo completed his doctorate in Clinical Psychology at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville and Internship at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. His first assignment was as the Chief of Psychology at Blanchfield Army Community Hospital.

After leaving the military, Dr. Azevedo worked for Kaiser-Permanente for a time before opening his first practice group. During that time, he started an executive leadership consulting practice in addition to his clinical practice. Consulting with a variety of corporations from Cisco Systems, GlaxoSmithKline, and Nike to smaller, local family-owned businesses drew him out of clinical work for a few years. Although it was fun work, his heart led him back to his calling of clinical practice.

With a partner, he started 3-C Family Psychology in 2003. It had grown to a 15-practitioner practice when he sold it in 2015. He still has a small clinical practice which he shares with his daughter, Kym Azevedo, LMFT. His passion is to help people create a life worth celebrating. The smaller practice allows him to divide his time between consulting, clinical work, and a new interest — Voice Over Acting narrating audiobooks and doing podcasts. He has been married for over 37 years to a most tolerant and supportive wife with whom he has 2 adult children.
